P-Noy says judiciary one wrong committed in the past

By Mercedes Ibar Datura

TWENTY-SIX years after millions flocked to Edsa to overthrow a dictator, President Aquino yesterday rallied Filipinos to take action against the judiciary that, he said, like martial law was one of the "writings committed in the past" that needed to be corrected.

Apparently contrasting his recent favorite theme, the recommitment of impeached Chief Justice Renato Corona, Mr. Aquino urged "revolutionary action," saying "revolutions happen, because people

(Editor's Note: As the nation re-evaluates the 1986 People Power Revolution, one family also re-lives the memories of one of Philippine democracy's towering defenders, Jose W. Diokno—senator, human rights advocate, martial law prisoner, top legislator, man of faith, devoted husband and loving father. "Pa Pepe" passed away 25 years ago, on Feb. 27, 1987. He would have turned 80 today. The following are stories of Diokno written by 7 of his 10 children.)

Graciously welcomed by his subject into his home and offered to tag along to the trial, she came away with much more than just the details of a daily routine. Bad week for prosecution ends with music to its ears

By Raul C. Pangalangan

THE FIRST week didn't anger well for the prosecution in the impeachment trial of Chief Justice Renato Corona. But it wasn't all gloom for the prosecution after Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile made one ruling that was music to its ears.

He held that the hearing rule does not apply fully because the impeachment trial is not a criminal case. He had earlier said, in the prosecution's defense, that it was "akin to a criminal case."

St. Clare is here, don't bring eggs

By Jocelyn R. Uy

THE MOMENT the monastery's chapel closed for the night, a group of nuns in brown habits quietly emerged from their cloistered choir loft and swarmed around their "special guest," ready with their handkerchiefs and digital cameras.

Near the altar, inside an ornate, gleaming monstrance, was the relic of their monastic order's founder, St. Clare of Assisi.

For the first time in 800 years, the relic—a fragment of the saint's cranium—left its home at Basilica di Santa Chiara in Assisi, Italy, in line with the controversial celebration of the

CNN Hero's 'kariton' gets bigger, better

By Nora Quinsamdo

THE BIGGEST kariton (pushcart) that caught the attention of the world is making more headlines.

The mobile Kariton Karamba learning project of 2009 CNN Hero Elmer Belandier is at leading street news without ground, providing the streets of Cebu City with a holistic education, health and values initiative for school youth.

Dubbed Kariton Karamba, Belandier's Dynamic Team Company (DKC) has expanded its alternative education program to tackle the 10s Karangan (education), Kalamang (youth), Kalamang (health), Kalamang (peace and safety), Kalamang (arts and culture), Kalamang (environment) and Kalamang (social).

The initiative will be discussed during classes held in DKC's known style: Kariton. They will park their Kariton—each carrying instructional materials—on the streets and around the city to school youth to take part in lessons.

Be the change

"It's always believed that not, as individuals, have to be the change that we dream of. We all have the hero within us and we can unleash it by creating a super hero within us. It's not just a matter of being a hero, it's a matter of being a hero for the sake of our country, our community, our very own family," Belandier said in a statement.

"I am always grateful for opportunities to bring my Kariton to a wider public and, more importantly, to encourage more people to volunteer their time and resources," he said. "To launch the Kariton Karamba, the DKC, the Department of Education's Cebu Division Office and the Cebu Youth Council will hold a meeting on March 1 to 2 in Cebu City.

Organizers are calling on interested individuals to take part in an initial survey campaign to be held during the launch week.

The DKC will also hold a Kariton Karamba grand opening to schools, libraries, barangays, people's organizations and other groups.

Collective, meanwhile, will give a Kariton Karamba session to be held on March 4. Belandier's Kariton Karamba is among those expected to give the citizens of the launch week.

Under the program, volunteers and sponsors may choose which of the seven key concerns to support.

"By highlighting these 70s, the Kariton Karamba is a spreading the word view of our long-ignored youth and giving them a more well-rounded education, even outside the classroom," said DKC's Belandier. "In Cebu, we have a 10s Kariton Karamba, the DKC and the DKC launched 10s Kariton Karamba, Kalamang, Kalamang, a joint program adopting Belandier's volunteer-based methodology across children around Metro Manila.

Order of St. Clare, also known as the Poor Clares.

Following its arrival at Manila's Agaña International Airport on Tuesday, the nuns were brought to Montserrat de Sto. Clara in Quezon City, where it was kept overnight before it was flown to Cebu.

That night at the monastery, the nuns likely received a private welcome with two Italian brothers, recently arriving from the Vatican, who were with the nuns during their flight. The nuns, who were with the nuns during their flight, were with the nuns during their flight.

Hands-on help from foreign volunteers

By Cat Padilla
Cagayan de Oro City

THERE is nothing stronger than the heart of a volunteer, it is said.

For the 30 foreigners who have offered their time to work in the disaster-stricken areas of Cagayan de Oro City following the flood-caused mud and debris from houses and helping build houses for families who will be relocated from high-risk areas along the riverbanks, the feeling is hard to quantify.

By day, residents, particularly in Benguet, Bulacan and Cebu, are very familiar with the foreigners, who have been living in their modest for almost a month. Their group, All Hands Volunteers, is a US-based nonprofit organization that recruits families on volunteerism to survivors of natural disasters around the world.

"The guide members to accepting people who usually do not have the skills. A volunteer comes from the group and do meaningful work even without having the necessary skills, just as long as they are willing to help others," says Chris Turner, project director for Cagayan de Oro.

The All Hands story began in 2005 after the devastating tsunami in Asia which resulted in South Asia the year before. David Campbell, an American businessman, went to disaster-stricken Thailand to look into the situation and offer help or services. He eventually became one of the founders of HandsOnThatland, which brought more than 200 volunteers and financial assistance to help rebuild the fishing village in Phuket.

In 2005, the HandsOn volunteers offered assistance in survivors of Hurricane Katrina in the United States. Six years later, nearly 18,000 volunteers from 40 countries responded to 24 disaster projects in eight countries around the world.

In 2010, their group came to be known as All Hands Volunteers.

All Hands responded to Cagayan de Oro's cry for help following the onslaught of "Super typhoon Sendong" on Dec. 17 last year.

Evaluating damage

Tuned in on Jan. 2 for the preliminary evaluation, "We had to look at the scale of the damage. If there are more than 10,000 houses damaged, then we do volunteer work there," he said.

According to the United Nations, nearly 88,000 homes were damaged during the flooding devastation.

The group also had to look at the capacity of the local government to respond to the situation.

After its initial study, All Hands suggested two needed services: clearing mud and debris and building permanent shelters.

As part of a community-based approach, to recruit a housing site just outside the city city established a private organization and eight local residents with the victims.

On Jan. 26, volunteers from the United States, United Kingdom and Ireland flew to the city and immediately started working with local organizations and along-side community members in flood-affected areas around the city.

People's reality

Among the first tasks to do was to provide coordinate Jenita Thompson, who hails from London, the regional administrator for the local, especially the mud, the ability to be useful in times of disaster.

"The people have been very friendly. They are motivated to help themselves and everybody works together to everybody's own happiness," she said.

Before engaging in volunteer work, Thompson said to look at the situation, feeling that everything was looking in the light, she decided to do volunteer work in disaster-stricken areas—where the need was the greatest.

"Most of our work is to help people move back into their homes. It is so much more rewarding than we go to live in the same community with the people... we don't see separated from the people," she said.

She said she was especially proud of her organization because it gives people a chance to help others. "You just have to be willing to work and help other people," she added.

Although there are no criteria for those who want to join All Hands, it is suggested that the volunteers should be in good physical health because much of the work involves manual labor. Most of the volunteers are in their late 20s and early 30s.

Older volunteer

Among those who want to be in disaster areas are older people. In 2011, the All Hands group has participated in volunteer work since 2005 and has always made sure to offer his services each year when he gets a chance. "I'm maintaining my skill and keeping my mind sharp in the field of work."

"This volunteer work keeps my life in perspective. Every year I go to work with people."

more a lot of people," he said.

After he arrived in only recently, James has been passionately working in Cagayan de Oro. One of the hardest jobs was to build. Each day he has morning runs every day from Cagayan de Oro to the riverbank and bring along shovels, wheelbarrows and other tools to the work area.

At first, he observed that the residents were feeling lost and were very hesitant to accept their help. But he was able to establish rapport, especially with the children, by simply talking to them, taking their photos and showing them to them.

Part of culture

Now, James knows a lot of people and a reward every time they say "thank you" for the help or offer something to them.

"People are always trying to offer food and water... They don't have to do that. But I understand that it is a part of our culture. It's really a human way to meet a lot of new people," he said.

Indeed, the volunteers have become a popular sight in the area. Freely admitted, a resident of Cagayan de Oro who is quoted in 1991, only has praise for them.

"It is such a sight to see the people working on their feet. They really work hard. I don't see them taking a lot of break from the manual work. I really admire them for this," she said.

All Hands is committed to work. On March 26, the All Hands team believes that they should be long longer because a lot of work still needs to be done.

James said the situation in Cagayan de Oro is not that complicated as it is not and developed enough. He said the group did not have much difficulty coordinating with the local officials because teams are often provided to take away the debris they had removed.

Selection process

"The local government was receptive and welcoming to international volunteers," he said.

James also said acceptance still remained as to how fast he was chosen for volunteer work or permanent work. "I'm not really interested how the selection process will go through that if it is challenging for me, then I must be here for them," he said.

The public said, it is the long change that makes it the volunteer work. "What's really rewarding about this is getting to interact with the local community... a simple smile or an honest smile or playing soccer with the kids simply goes great," Turner said.

And as James put it, "I stay away from people who I enjoy helping people."

LEADING 34: Enrile's ruling on 'bribe' is sent to the prosecution lawyers

Bad week for prosecution

vide questions of her life and "integrity." The facts and facts of a plot as revealed by witnesses and questions of law (the debate on constitutional immunity from civil or criminal liability) are not required. But the prosecution, it was a bad week either way.

Monday was a total waste of everybody's time. The Senate looked into one question of fact that didn't even pertain to Corason's guilt or innocence. Who was the source of the leaked Corason health documents? Was it someone within (PDA)? Or the Anti-Money Laundering Council? Or the Bangko Sentral? The questioning and answers had merely opened one possibility that was fought with neither the right nor the left.

The Senate's morning session was in violation of two laws. One, most innocently, it is judicially granted the integrity of the trial, and would not let the prosecution at it with the rules. Or two, and more seriously, that the senators were accused that the prosecution thought they could pull a fast one on them and take them to task.

Monday was the most dramatic in both the criminal and justice sense. Enrile's impact exploded at the prosecution as he belatedly the prosecution's evidence, defective and threatened to send it back to the House to be corrected.

That day the prosecution completed its presentation of evidence on Article 2 of the impeachment charges, namely, that Corason had the necessary statement of assets, liabilities and net worth (SALIN) and concealed properties, and bank accounts. It then moved on to Article 3 which charges Corason with being morally unfit to be a judge. Stop Enrile, for instance, allegedly suspected Corason that Enrile became Corason's confidential informant when he was appointed by former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo to the governing board of the Camp John Hay Development Corp., participating with her in the alleged bribe to the Supreme Court. But to say, Enrile's impact on Corason, in private and behind the back of the prosecuting party.

Just to give the larger picture, at various times, a Philippine Airlines (PAL) senior officer, had also testified on the Stop Enrile under the PAL Labor Dispute. On Tuesday, the prosecution was asked to offer the testimony of a PAL vice-president under the VIP ports that PAL, allegedly gave Corason but Enrile failed to disclose.

Article 3 tests

Enrile could have allowed the PAL vice-president to testify. After all, if the Corason had received benefits from a party in return for not going to the Supreme Court, he is in violation of Article 3 on judicial integrity. Instead Enrile read the rules and rules, saying that the VIP ports pertained to "bribe" which was not in the impeachment charges. The Commission's role in this evidence may be allowed to prove only facts that were alleged in the complaint. To the prosecution, he said. If you insist on the evidence, go back to the House and make the articles of impeachment abide.

That's why the Commission's prosecution moved to case on Article 3. They spent the day by dropping several charges under Article 3, including those involving Enrile, Corason's John Hay appointment and the Supreme Court. However, they insisted the charge on Stop Enrile, and they would present any more evidence on Article 3.

De Lima testifies

That was the stage for the presentation of evidence on Article 3 charging Corason with allegedly "negotiating" the issuance of the temporary restraining order (TRO) that would have allowed Arroyo and her husband to escape prosecution in a corruption case. Arroyo filed seven questions against him. The prosecution presented as its witness not less than Justice Secretary Leila de Lima, who testified on these which led to Arroyo's removal from office. Enrile's prosecution remained silent. Philippine Justice Arroyo still under investigation.

The Supreme Court issued a TRO lifting the watch list system but imposed three conditions: the posting of a P2 million bond, assignment of an agent to monitor Arroyo's activities in the Supreme Court, and to report to the Commission each time they had a meeting abroad. The Lima testified that when Arroyo was Modelled at the PDA, it was because she hadn't fulfilled all these conditions. The purpose of the Lima's testimony was to accept the facts.

Hearings testimony

However, another part of her testimony was struck off as hearsay. The Lima also testified that Corason had allegedly not received things as that it would appear that the conditional TRO was already effective. She relied on the internal court deliberations recorded in the disarming opinion of Associate Justice Ms. Lourdes Sereno.

But the Senate had earlier denied their plan to postpone the high court justices and documents, citing interdepartmental conflict and contrary, and the high court issued, from its trial, issued a resolution that the court proceeded from briefing, which was already allowed by the high court itself. The problem then was that the behind-the-scenes action to delay the testimony of the TRO still happened during the disarming sessions of the court, just to name the justice themselves. They would need Enrile personally to testify.

Sereno dilemma

By the time the week ended, the prosecution was everything money to get her to appear voluntarily was a subpoena. Their dilemma is that, under the high court's resolution, she would need the court's prior permission. However, the defense has already argued that even if she returns but still cannot see her in her disarming opinion, that is merely one version of events that cannot proceed and be followed—"look, live and make" and that defense counsel, Braden Carrasco—want the majority opinion to reject the use of the rest of the justice. Finally, it would require Sereno to question already tried to visit the newspaper that, in different from Corason, she had also failed to make a full report to her SALIN.

QC councilor wants free pee for elderly

By John M. Basilio

DURHAM City's old and disabled folks should get a pass for free.

A city councilor wants to have the practice of some towns which charge motor citizens and persons with disabilities for a fee when they use their toilet.

Alfred Herrera said the elderly are sometimes forced to look for "free" toilets because remote establishments request fees to pay first before paying.

"The senior citizens and persons with disability are a great disadvantage since they are less mobile and capable of walking further in order to respond to the call of nature," he said in his proposed measure.

His two-page proposed ordinance aims to relieve the collection of fees from the elderly and disabled by the use of public, public or private.

A senior student only needs to present his identification card from the Office of Senior Citizens Affairs to the members of any municipality in the city which to ensure people to pay for the use of its toilet.

For persons with disability, they also before the municipality they wish to use the toilet unless they can be helped.

Herrera said all establishments and businesses will be required to put up a sign which should read, "Senior citizens of Quezon City and persons with disability free of charge" for their use a P1,000 fee.

Student shot and killed after gunning down cop

By Joaquin S. Andarico

A 23-YEAR-OLD metrology student was killed Tuesday just minutes after he was arrested for allegedly gunning down a policeman in Manila.

Franklin Salinas, of Quezon City, was declared dead on arrival at the Jose Abad Santos General Hospital after he was shot, eight outside the Manila Police Station (MPS) Station 17, on Riosa Highway and Sola Street in Marikina, where he allegedly grabbed the gun of one of two policemen escorting him to the substation for a medical checkup.

The incident happened just minutes after Salinas was arrested for allegedly shooting dead

P01 Ramon dela Cruz, of the Police Alpha police command province of the MPS Marikina, inside RM06-2.

Dela Cruz was declared dead on arrival by doctors at the Metropolitan Hospital from a bullet wound in the back.

P01 Agustin Tapera, of the MPS Marikina sector, said the incident started at around 1:30 p.m. at the corner of E.M. Riosa Avenue and Antonio Rivera Street in Marikina.

Tapera and Dela Cruz were then pursuing a robbery suspect who had gotten on a shopper inside the Tacubus-Corona Walk. The policeman said, his subordinates were searching for the suspect at the street corner when Salinas allegedly appeared from behind Dela Cruz and shot him in the back with a semiautomatic handgun.

Pursuing suspects of the MPS Station 17 saw Salinas running away from the scene and caught up with him while other policemen brought Dela Cruz to the nearest hospital.

The case investigator pointed out that the MPS Station 17 personnel arrested Salinas and brought him to the Manila station for looking in connection with Dela Cruz's killing.

But several minutes later, SPO1 Nicolas Fabian and P01 Marlon Escobedo were tasked to bring Salinas to the Jose Abad Santos General Hospital for the mandatory medical checkup on arrested suspects.

The policemen were escorting Salinas into a patrol car parked in front of the station when the suspect allegedly grabbed the gun of Escobedo from the holster on his waist.

"Salinas immediately reacted to surrender the sword Salinas and shot him," Tapera told the incident. The policemen brought the wounded suspect to the Jose Abad Santos General Hospital, where he was declared dead on arrival from three bullet wounds to his body.

Operations of the MPS board ride action have asked the two policemen involved in the task force to surrender their firearms for mandatory testing while they conduct further investigation into the two deaths.

BAGUIO CITY—During the last week of January, John Kimo

but they have become the leading forces in Kimo's entry in this year's landscaping competition dubbed "Market Encounter," a major feature of the annual Panghega (Shiga) Festival.

"It used to only average flowers. But this landscaping competition has given me opportunities to improve myself," says Kimo, president of the Panghega Landscaping Association.

Kimo and 11 other artists have entered the competition. They are creating landscapes using what they see from their environment and from garden settings here and abroad.

For example, Kimo says he would not be the latest for samples of Italian, English or Japanese gardens. "Now, he says, would give him ideas which he incorporates with his own."

"The aim is to make," he says. "My carpentry, masonry, electrical, and hardware skills of wood as in landscape or water works" skills also come into play."

selected to enter in what is called the "open category" and the "closed category" of the competition.

A total of P100,000 is allotted as prize for the top three winners of each category.

Win or lose, Kimo says the landscaping contest was open opportunities for the artists and entrepreneurs like him. These include selling for landscaping materials by clients, like hotel and re-tailor shops.

Kimo, being a carpenter, also in flower arrangement, has been contacted by three participants in the Panghega Festival. From garden to this. St. Many participants in the parade are business establishments that can afford to spend as much as P200,000 to P500,000 for each floral float.

Generating income

Since they have to spend money for the collection of flowers for the landscaping, flower float parade and other landscaping competitions, Panghega organizers have devised a way by which the festival could generate income.

One way is putting up business stalls in a section of Baguio Park where visitors can sell various goods. This is the core of the "Market Encounter" idea, which integrates the landscaping competition.

For the past several years, the U.S. has been a major source of funding for the Palestinian Authority. But in the past few months, the U.S. has been cutting off funding to the Authority. This has led to a crisis in the Authority's ability to pay its employees and to provide basic services to the people of the West Bank and Gaza. The U.S. has said that it is cutting off funding because the Authority is not doing enough to protect the rights of the Palestinian people. But the Authority has said that it is doing everything it can to protect the rights of the Palestinian people. This crisis has led to a loss of confidence in the U.S. and the Authority. There are two main ways to find a good book. The first is to ask a friend or a librarian. The second is to look at the book cover. If you are looking for a good book, you should look at the book cover. The book cover is the first thing you see when you pick up a book. It is the first thing that tells you what the book is about. Pedro Calungsod to be canonized Oct. 21, Malolos diocese turns 50

BLESSED Pedro Calungsod of Cebu was canonized in 2002.

FR. MARIO GARCIA noted Jan. 16, 15, "In Cebu, Las Pinas, Marikina, Pedro Calungsod will be canonized Oct. 21, 2012 in Rome."

Calungsod was a Catholic Filipino missionary, an apostle who suffered martyrdom with Jesus at the Blessed Diego Lino de San Vicente in Cebu on April 2, 1672. He will be one of seven "Blessed" who will be canonized in the shrine in Rome.

Blessed Calungsod was martyred at the age of 27. He was born in Cebu in 1644. Through the missionary efforts of Calungsod and other San Vicente, today San Vicente is known as the "Blessed" of Cebu. He was canonized in the Vatican of Rome, Italy, by Pope John Paul II, the 26th, on Oct. 21, 2002. The Pope said that he was inspired by the life of a Filipino martyr.

Fun in the family—in my case, many families!

PIRETS TWO But that are, indeed, the strongest. We may all get caught up in our own busy lives, but at the end of the day, family is all that matters.

After years of working as an investment banker in Singapore, my eldest son Ryan Pirets has come home to work in the family business. It is wonderful to have him home, and for us to be a complete family once again.

My other "family" units are growing, too. First, there's my TVS family, or what I consider to be my show-biz family. With our roots in the "The Asian Malaysian Music Edition" (Philippines), I am now part of the Kapamilya network. It was fun to be part of the TVS Road Show in the Philippines. With all the success and laughter, it was also a bit of a challenge.

"Tessa! Tessa Prieto-Malibon!"

Malibon's "House of the Rising Sun" is in the final stages of taping the show for our first season. We were recently in Warsaw, Poland, and co-designer Abby Cadabre and I had a Malibon experience. Don't miss the show on March 1st. The house we are building are in partnership with another of my family units, my sister's family, the Pirets Foundation has sponsored 18 Grand Rides.

TechnoMarine launches limited Pacquiao watch

Geneva-based timepiece brand TechnoMarine launches the limited edition Manny Pacquiao watch.

Known for timepieces that mix a playful attitude with a strong design, TechnoMarine collaborated with the undisputed pound-for-pound king in designing the "Manny Pacquiao-8" or MP8 watch. There will only be 1,000 pieces of this watch worldwide.

MP8 stands for Pacquiao's eight-division world championships in boxing, a feat no human has ever done before.

TechnoMarine recognizes Pacquiao's legendary achievement and teams up in a timely match.

The MP8 watch is inspired by Pacquiao's Filipino identity and global success. The face shows a sun and highlights only the dial 8, as a symbol of Pacquiao's achievements. The bezel of the watch has the word "Pacquiao" while the tachymeters are uniquely designed.

Like most TechnoMarine watches, the MP8 has interchangeable straps, with carefully selected colors of Philippine red, and an extra white strap. Limited editions of yellow and blue straps ideal for the MP8 watch will be sold separately.

Interested buyers started signing up in the stores since January 20 to be guaranteed a piece of the limited MP8. The MP8 watch is available in all TechnoMarine stores.

Pacquiao has obtained international respect from athletes and non-athletes alike. He is a modern Philippine hero whose achievements can unite the people even in times of political and economic uncertainty.

TechnoMarine launched Pacquiao last year as one of TechnoMarine's icons. Pacquiao sports a Cruise Original on his one eye like a pilot as seen in billboards and print ads. This is a global TechnoMarine campaign that shows how the brand addresses people who may be rebellious and different, but special.

"TechnoMarine watches represent strength, motion, and color. It's a timepiece that's designed to be enjoyed by those who wear it," says Raffy Florancio, president of Techno Time Retailers Corp., the exclusive distributor of TechnoMarine in the Philippines.

He adds, "Manny Pacquiao is a global icon who can really represent the TechnoMarine watch, and we made sure that this Cruise Original MP8 will be a collectible."

TechnoMarine is known for cool and vibrant designs that are sold in specialized stores around the globe. The first to design diamonds in a diving chronograph watch, TechnoMarine's innovation in timepiece design has diversified watches that express fun and adventure.

TechnoMarine stores are in Greenbelt 3, SM Megamall, Trinoma, SM Cebu, SM North EDSA and Robinsons Galleria. Its watches are also sold in My Tempo, My Diamond and select Washington stores.

For inquiries, TechnoMarine may be reached at 0917-8452583 from Monday to Friday, 11:00 am to 6:00 pm, excluding holidays.

Suspense surrounds Academy Awards

But the French actor's spirit is the very thing that makes him so likable. That is, if more Academy voters are inspired by Clooney's natural ease in "The Descendants" as a husband and father coping with a wife's sudden death and his discovery that she was cheating on him.

If both Viola and Clooney win, they will make Oscar history as the first African American actress to win consecutive best actress and best supporting actress awards.

Christopher Plummer, as a widower who comes out of the closet in his 70s in "Beginners," is predicted to take home an accolade best supporting actor despite his also dominating this field right from the start of the awards season.

In the last picture race, it'll be "The Artist" or "Beginners"? Well, he's glad if either one wins. By coincidence, both are available to early cinema although there are some who consider "The Artist" to be "too light" to be worthy of a best picture prize.

The competition between the two films comes down to the best director category. "The Artist's" Michael Haneke is in the odds-on favorite to bag the UNUSUAL SUSPECT is in the good again—rising Macho-Gore, a kind of a real action.

He admits that he had only one close association with it, at a big event hosted by a friend they both knew.

Although he is in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He got the "other" part right, he only needs to work on the later. Perhaps he should start with some more and more, he should start with some more and more, he should start with some more and more.

Major overhaul

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

After years of doing away it is claimed his life was a mess, it is really getting better.

As a new sign of breaking into the industry, it is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

Life sentence

After years of doing away it is claimed his life was a mess, it is really getting better.

They've gone on several occasions, but he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

He is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play, he is not in the mood to play.

Do not stand at my grave and weep,
I am not there, I do not sleep;
I am a thousand winds that blow,
